LAW (1885) ON THE PUBLIC MARKETS (RIGHTS OF THE VICOUNT)

HAVING taken into consideration a certain Act of the Markets Committee dated 28th June 1884, of which the tenor follows:

THE MARKETS COMMITTEE

Eighteen eighty-four, the twenty-eighth day of June.

The Committee, after discussion, decided that it would be advantageous in the public interest, that the administration and management of the Public Markets be concentrated in the hands of the States or a Committee of the States charged to this effect, to the exclusion of any other public official, and, in order to achieve this result, it would be expedient for the Viscount to cede all rights vested in him with regard to the said Markets pursuant to the Laws that have existed up to the present day and that, on the other hand, he be released from all duties in relation to the said Markets, provided that the annual sum due to the Viscount and his successors, by virtue of the relevant Order in Council shall be paid as in the past. And the Viscount, present at the meeting of the Committee, having participated in the discussions that took place, declared his readiness to give his agreement to the present decision of the Committee.

And the Committee decided to communicate this Act to the States.

THE STATES approved thereof and prayed that Her Most Excellent Majesty in Council give Her assent thereto.
